Chinese Government Railways in 1918

IT will be observed that net operating revenues are sufficient to meet all net income debts, such as interest, taxes, rentals, etc., more than four times over. The surplus for the year is equivalent to a 29 per cent return upon the Permanent Government Investment in the combined lines.

As the report will point out, these results are abnormally favorable, and the year 1919 should not be expected to show a similar increase over 1918. The reason for this is that the year 1917, with which comparison is made did not show normal revenues due to floods and other disturbances. In addition considerable traffic which naturally should have moved in 1917 was left over until 1918 and swelled the normal traffic. On top of this, the season of 1918 was usually favorable. Crops were heavy and there was practically no interruption to the lines. The only exception of importance to this statement was the closing down of the Peking Suiyuan during the early months of the year as a measure of "plague" prevention.

As would be expected, operating percentage, or ratio, shows a considerable decrease. It stands at 44 compared with 47 in 1917 and 52 in 1915. The present figure is probably the lowest average in any country on the globe. Several lines show much better percentages, but the total is raised because of the unfortunate position of certain lines isolated from fuel supplies or without traffic connections. The individual lines rank as follows:—

Peking Hankow	33.1	Shanghai Nanking	61.1
Peking Mukden	33.5	Peking Suiyuan	65.1
Cheng Tai	41.7	Shanghai Hangchow Ningpo	86.2
Taokow Chinghua	44.9	Chuchow Pinghsiang	89.6
Tientsin Pukow	50.2	Canton Kowloon	112.9
Kaifeng Honan	55.4	Changchow Amoy	187.5
Kirin Changchun	60.5

Chinese Government Railways 44.2

Such an operating percentage naturally leaves large net revenues. The proportion which these bear to the investment in the various lines indicates the wisdom of the investment, provided sufficient time has elapsed to prove inherent possibilities. Unfortunately in several cases, plans for the completion of lines have been held up by unavoidable causes, and the possibilities have not been proven, but for the most part very creditable returns upon the sums invested have been earned. This is reflected in the following summary, in which the per cent which net operating revenues bears to cost of road and equipment is shown by lines.

SUMMARY 2.

Peking Mukden	22.7	Shanghai Nanking	6.2
Peking Hankow	15.8	Peking Suiyuan	5.6
Kirin Changchun	10.6	Kaifeng Honan	4.2
Cheng Tai	8.4	Shanghai Hangchow Ningpo	1.5
Taokow Chinghua	7.1	Chuchow Pinghsiang	0.0
Tientsin Pukow	6.2	Canton Kowloon	Deficit
		Changchow Amoy	Do.

Chinese Government Railways

These results have been made possible by increased business and by improved efficiency. Passengers carried one kilometre increased 9 per cent and tons hauled one kilometre increased 24 per cent. In 1918, 229 passengers were carried per train compared with 211 during 1917, and in goods service there was a similar increase from 244 to 257 tons per train. Thus the additional passengers were carried with practically no increase in train service, while the 24 per cent increase in goods traffic resulted in only 17.6 per cent increase in goods train kilometres. There is a noticeable increase in the average length of haul per ton. The typical ton of goods in 1918 was hauled 184 kilometres compared with 165 in 1917 and 141 in 1915. Rates have remained unchanged.

Very little change was made in the physical property during the year. Two short branches, aggregating 28 kilometres were built. The investment in physical property upon all lines increased some $4,336,000. Seven new locomotives were purchased. The seating capacity of carriages was increased by 1506 seats,—2 per cent. Goods stock was increased by 21 wagons built and 200 leased on a permanent basis. The performances of all of these units were much larger than in 1917. The government's equity in the property was increased by $7,664,000 through additions to property and repayment of funded debt through surplus and the increase of permanent government investment. Mortgage bonds were reduced by $2,550,000.

THE $30,000,000 wine and tobacco loan from America, which Mr. Hsu En-yuan, former Governor of the Bank of China, recently signed with the American banking group represented by the Continental & Commercial National Bank of Chicago, has formed an interesting subject for discussion in the Chinese and foreign press during the last few weeks. In consequence of the protest of the old Banking Consortium against the provision in the wine and tobacco loan agreement of making use of the salt tax surplus to meet deficits in the case of the inefficiency of wine and tobacco receipts to meet the loan obligations, new complications have arisen, and negotiations concerning them are still proceeding. The American Banking Group is reported to have told the Chinese government that in view of the new situation it would be better to hold the matter in abeyance for the time being. Not only will the Chinese government be unable to get any advance from the American financiers, so says the report, but also it will have difficulty in persuading them to extend the period for the return of the five million dollar loan signed in 1916. The editor of a Japanese daily in Tientsin, in an editorial on this question, shows his possession of a good deal of inside knowledge regarding the opposition to the loan. "The question is, however, whether this loan can be successfully pulled through," he said. "Already the 'public voice' is raised against the loan in China. Meetings have been held at Shanghai and elsewhere to protest to the government as well as the American authorities against the loan and demand its cancellation. Then there is the Quadruple Group. If reports can be trusted, a protest has already been lodged with the Chinese government and the United States in which it is pointed out that it has a prior claim to the tax (or rather to the salt surplus). In view of these facts, we are inclined to think that many days will pass before the loan takes a tangible shape, with the probability of coming out in the end in a shape more or less altered."

THIS loan is not a new one. Article 6 of the Wine and Tobacco Loan contract concluded by Mr. John J. Abbott, vice-president of the Chicago Bank, gave the Continental & Commercial Bank a 60 days option on all future loans which the Chinese government might wish to raise on the wine and tobacco receipts. This option is understood to have been repeatedly renewed. The present loan is therefore a completion of an old agreement. Much as the Chinese people oppose any foreign loan made to China at a time when she still remains disunited, there are provisions in the contract which guard against the money being wasted for military purposes, or worse, for the resumption of civil strife. It is learned from reliable sources that an American adviser will be appointed in connection with the reorganization of the Wine and Tobacco Administration along the line of the Salt Administration. Mr. Abbott will be appointed to this important position and will assist in collecting the wine and tobacco revenue in such a manner that all the taxes from the provinces will reach Peking in safety. If a foreign element is injected into the Administration, much of the difficulty which the present able Director, Mr. Chang Shou-ling, is experiencing can be greatly minimized to the benefit of the government as well as of the people. Barring foreign backing, the obstinate provincial authorities will never cease interfering with the appointment of Central government officials for the collection of wine and tobacco receipts made by the Peking Administration and detaining such receipts whenever they are in dire need of funds for military and other purposes. The Central government is helpless when it is called upon to deal with them in such matters especially at a time when its authority over the provinces is unusually weak. From this point of view, the wine and tobacco loan just concluded is welcomed by most thinking Chinese as it will introduce a new powerful force which will act for the best interests of the entire Chinese nation.

THE Japanese financiers are greatly surprised at the news of the conclusion of this loan. They did not expect that American financiers would really carry out the threat that if Japan did not withdraw her condition of excluding Manchuria and Mongolia from the activities of the new Consortium they would lend money to China singly. They are now naturally opposing the new loan and trying their best to secure the assistance of Great Britain and France in this opposition. Following this, we are inclined to believe that the question of the organization of a new consortium will again be revived and that Japan will take a more reasonable attitude toward it from now on. The chance of the success of the new consortium is interpreted in many quarters as being much brighter now than ever before. If the salt surplus complication connected with the new loan can be removed, there is no better indication, in the opinion of the majority of the Chinese, than the conclusion of the loan that the American financiers were really in earnest when they announced that they would actively participate in Far Eastern financial affairs. There was a time when many Chinese and foreigners doubted America's desire to make loans to China on a large scale. Anti-American Chinese officials never hesitated to make known to those who were more favorably disposed towards America that since 1913 the United States did not do a single thing which could be held up as an example of America's real interest in China's financial well-being. A general revision of this view is now going on in the minds of observing Chinese.

A SERIOUS issue is involved in the struggle between the present Prime Minister of China, General Chin Yun-peng, and the Anfu Club, a political party which has been dominating Chinese politics for the last few months, over the question of the reorganization of the cabinet. General Chin has been appointed formal Prime Minister with the approval of parliament, which is dominated by the Anfu members, but the Club is determined to get a few Anfu (militarist) members appointed as ministers of the reorganized cabinet. General Chin is willing to comply with its wishes, and has expressed his willingness to allow Chu Hsin, Minister of Justice, and Tseng Yu-chun, Acting Minister of Communications, to continue holding their posts in the reorganized cabinet, but with regard to the portfolio of finance he has chosen Chow Tsz-chi. Here the disagreement between the Prime Minister and the Anfu Club has arisen. The latter has declared its intention to oppose to the last Mr. Chow's nomination for the Finance Ministry whereas the former has definitely made up his mind that Mr. Chow is to be Minister of Finance whether parliament accepts his nomination or not. Political friends are now mediating, and unless the Anfu Club withdraws from its present attitude, General Chin may openly declare war against it. On account of this difference of view, the Prime Minister has not yet submitted a list of nominees for the cabinet posts to parliament for confirmation prior to their appointments. The Anfu Club now and then throws out hints that before an agreement has been reached on this point General Chin must not submit to parliament the list of cabinet nominees. If he does, it will have either to shelve the list or to be absent from parliamentary meetings in order to prevent a consideration of the list.

IN this connection there is a report in circulation that the present Prime Minister may agitate for the dissolution of the Northern parliament in the event of failure to arrive at a settlement of the question of the cabinet reorganization. The plausible reason which he will give for hostility towards the Anfu Club will possibly be that parliament is obstructing the government. If he takes up such a stand, he will likely have the support of practically all the military governors in the provinces. In fact, these powerful militarists in the provinces are already welcoming the reorganization of the cabinet by General Chin and urge his political opponents to consider seriously before they interfere. Marshal Tuan Chi-jui, the powerful leader of the Peiyang Party, is supporting General Chin, and his support means much to the Prime Minister. The people in general, who have never liked the Anfu Club since its birth several months ago although they were powerless to oppose its injurious activities, are siding with General Chin in this struggle. All the forces are thus combined in working against the Anfu Club. Whether its principal leader, General Hsu Shu-cheng, or "Little Hsu," who is reported to have lost the confidence of Marshal Tuan, can swing around the awkward situation in favor of his party, remains to be seen. The personnel of the new cabinet which General Chin has decided upon are Chow Tsz-chi for the portfolio of finance, Tien Wen-lien for the portfolio of agriculture and commerce, Chang Chih-tan for the portfolio of the interior, Tseng Yu-chun for the portfolio of communications, Chu Hsin for the portfolio of justice, Hsia Shou-kang for the portfolio of education, Sah Tseng-ping for the portfolio for navy, Lu Cheng-hsiang for the portfolio of foreign affairs and the Prime Minister himself for the portfolio of war. With the exception of Chow Tsz-chi, the Anfu Club has informally approved of all the cabinet nominees. In view of the experience of Mr. Chow, his non-party affiliation, his knowledge of foreign affairs, his intimate acquaintance with foreign bankers, and confidence of the President in him, the Anfu Club may be well advised to change its opposition to support of his nomination for the portfolio of finance, which will result in the placing of a good man in the right place and in the solution of a serious issue now pending.

and revision of the agreement. The transfer of a large portion of the American fleet to the Pacific and the recent announcement of Admiral Jellicoe that a powerful British fleet is also to be stationed in the Pacific is the strongest possible indication of a lack of confidence in Japan's motives and a further indication that America and Great Britain are taking no stock in promises that are made but to be broken.

ST. John's University, Shanghai, celebrated its fortieth anniversary of service in China on Saturday, November 15. Honorary degrees were conferred upon the Rt. Rev. Sing Tsae-seng, assistant Bishop of Chekiang; Chang Po-ling, president of Nankai College, Nanking; T. H. Lee, president of Fuh-tan College, Shanghai; Huang Yen-pei, vice-president of the Kiangsu Educational Association; Sao-ke Alfred Sze, Minister to London; V. K. Wellington Koo, Minister to Washington; W. W. Yen, Minister to Berlin and Copenhagen; Julean Anold, U. S. Commercial Attache; Dzunig Rau-ji, professor of Chinese, St. John's University. The principle address in English was delivered by the Rt. Rev. F. L. Norris, Bishop of Peking, and the principle address in Chinese was delivered by Dr. Chang Po-ling, of Nankai College. Special features of the exercises were the dedication of a memorial gymnasium, a large part of the funds for which was raised by the students and alumni, and the announcement of a gift of $10,000 from the alumni for a social hall, in commemoration of the work of the late Mrs. F. L. Hawkes Pott. The exercises were attended by large numbers of alumni and prominent Chinese and foreign visitors from various parts of China. The members of the 1919 graduating class were awarded their degrees at the ceremony, owing to the fact that school exercises last spring were suspended because of the student strike and boycott following the news of the Shantung decision of the Paris peace conference.

ST. John's University has come to occupy an important position in the educational life of China. It has gained a prestige and an atmosphere that is probably unequalled anywhere outside of the older schools of America and Europe. The fact that its graduates are occupying places of importance in business, the professions and in the public life of China is at least visible proof of the value of its training—or rather the value of the newer or Western idea of education in the Orient. The Chinese Ministers to America, England and Germany received their training at St. John's University. Others although not so much in the public light, are performing just as important functions in the new life of China. The success of St. John's is a vindication of the work of the American missionary school in China and a demonstration to China of the effectiveness of modern scientific education in the life of a country. St. John's although founded with funds from America has become a Chinese university just as truly as Yale is American. The feeling of the students and alumni toward the school and its faculty is proof indeed that China appreciates assistance that help's her to help herself. It is difficult to sum up in a few words the value of properly directed higher education to the state. The fact that China's students are now becoming active in the affairs of the country and are exercising a profound influence upon the politics of the country is probably the most encouraging indication of better days to come in China. It is St. John's and dozens of other schools both private and governmental in China that are bringing about these changes. In the long run, the thing that will save China will not be railroads, banks, improved waterways, or development of industries, but it will be education—enlightened education as exemplified in the accomplishments of this American University in China. After, or rather along with education, will come the other things as a matter of course.

Who Will be the Sufferer?

BY UPTON CLOSE

EX-SENATOR Theodore E. Burton is reputed to be very close to Japanese banking interests in New York, and is unquestionably as sincere a friend as Japan has among public men in America. He is one of the most vigorous champions of the Peace Treaty, Shantung Amendment and all, being so ardent as to be willing to break with the leaders of his own party over the issue. He has been on a tour of the Orient, which was far more than a mere sight-seeing trip, under the personal conduct of Japanese friends and guides, having visited, been entertained and honored first in Japan, larded in China in Tsingtao, and proceeded to Peking by way of Tsinan and Tientsin, at which latter place he was banqueted by Japanese friends in their Concession before the Chinese officials or even his fellow-countrymen were aware of his presence in the country.

If ever Japanese press-agents and patriots had the opportunity to impress their government's side of a question upon a man they had it in the case of Mr. Burton. The Ex-Senator, however, is no novice in diplomacy, and evinced everywhere a willingness to be fair and gather facts from both sides and on all phases of the Sino-Nipponese controversy. As he passed through Shantung he had a fair opportunity to estimate to what extent the Japanese have got a hold of things in the province and how likely is the prospect of their ever making a free-will offering of their acquisitions and advantages back to China. He could not escape seeing the attitude of the Japanese towards the Chinese as an inferior race, existing for their convenience and service. And he could not help being impressed that practically every official representative, business man and merchant of English, American, French or Italian nationality whom he met was convinced of and keenly indignant over the ulterior motives and dishonorable methods of Japan's propaganda in China.

TREADING ON DYNAMITE

While in Tientsin and the Capital, the Senator did not yet find himself ready to make a statement of opinion on Sino-Japanese relations. In an interview for the North China Star, however, he stated that the Shantung Amendment was the truest obstacle to the passing of the Peace Treaty in the American Senate, if it had not been for that the Treaty would probably have been passed long ago, and that the American people were hostile to the injustice done China. On several occasions, in conversation with the writer, the Senator stated his sympathy with the Chinese feeling in the matter, although he said that in dealing with this question he felt that he was treading on dynamite. On asking the cause of the universal hostility of Europeans and Americans in China to Japan, he was told that it was not so much trade competition, as he perhaps imagined, as the conviction of foreigners that everything connected with Japanese propaganda, from diplomacy to morphine, is part of a skillfully laid and directed plan to render China, by fair means or foul, helpless in the hands of her neighbor, and the Western Powers, if possible, helpless to aid and without pretext to intervene. However, Mr. Burton, while in the North, always stated his unwavering assurance that Japan would fulfil her pledges and that the situation would come out all right.

It seems that after the Senator had covered the country from Peking to Hankow and down the Yangtze to Shanghai, however, and, perhaps been influenced by the liberal and live attitude of the British Chambers of Commerce in Conference at the latter port, that his confidence in the good intentions of the Japanese began to waver. Just before leaving the Orient his reticence on the question gave way to a plain statement which should be taken as a friendly and yet most earnest warning by Japanese statesmen. Speaking at a banquet in the Shanghai Naval Club, he said: "If Japan fails to keep her promise to return Shantung to China, Japan will be the sufferer and not China. The interest that the United States holds in China and the Far East is to see that justice and right prevail and that the sovereignty of China remains inviolable. And the government of the United States will not truckle to any nation regardless of her strength or success."

Mr. Burton stands close to the Administration in Washington, of which he is a staunch supporter in the largest issues, although of opposite political faith. His statement, however, represents the convictions of the American people, as much as the policy of the government. "American people are showing increased interest in China, particularly within the last year," he said. "The Far East is to be the pivot of the world's politics, and the Pacific Coast America's most important front."

AMERICA'S INTEREST

Up to the present time, in any discussion of the interests of the various Powers in China, economic, political and usually purely selfish, America has always been dismissed with a shrug: "Oh, well, America has no interests in China, and does not care for any." We believe, however, that America has an interest in China, which, newly awakened by the Shantung injustice, will play as large a part in the future of the nation as any of the material interests of the nations which have grasped concrete advantages, and that the Senator stated it right when he said: "The interest that the United States holds in China and the Far East is to see that justice and right prevail and that the sovereignty of China remains inviolate." We trust the Senator includes Shantung in China, although it is late in the day to talk of the inviolability of its sovereignty.

The rulers of Japan are stupefied if they do not see that the time has come when they can "put over" their "strong-arm" game no longer. It is time for them to reconsider the probable success of their line of diplomacy when even friends and supporters of Japan are constrained to warn her that she will suffer if she does not change her policy. Friends of Japan, no matter how bound up with her interests, no longer dare to uphold her methods in the face of enlightened public opinion.

Public opinion in America and among Westerners in the Far East has become crystallized on the issue. These people are convinced of Japan's deliberate intention to take advantage of her sister-Powers and to wrong her defenseless neighbor. Representatives of the British and American consular services feel strongly in the matter, and their influence counts for much. The feeling against the Japanese is far more than that engendered by national or trade competition, although much ill-will has been gained by their unfair and unprincipled methods in manufacturing and marketing. The attitude of Americans and many others is well expressed by an American Intelligence Officer who made investigations through Shantung this year: "We are not bursting with envy every time we see a new Japanese factory go up or a market gained. All that we ask and insist on is that they play the game fair." Before this officer left Shantung he was convinced that they are not "playing the game." He found that, in direct contravention of the agreement among the Allied and American troops in Siberia and the Orient, in which Japan was one of the principal parties, the Japanese were not reporting accurately the number and position of troops stationed in Shantung.

Other leading students of the Eastern situation have advised the Japanese on the wisest way to relate themselves to the present situation. As he passed through Tokio, on his way home, former Minister Paul S. Reinsch, during his professions of regard for Japan, made the meaningful suggestion that Japan holds in her hands the trump card, which, if played now, would gain the good-will of China, pacify the Orient, and gain for her the everlasting gratitude of the entire world.

From the standpoint of practical politics, many people believe that Japan's further retention of her conquests from Germany and the gains of her subsequent armed penetration in Shantung in comparison with what she can gain now by a graceful withdrawal, is a losing proposition—in diplomatic language, "worse than a crime—a blunder."

That there are leaders in Japan who appreciate this, among whom is perhaps the

H.E.W. c/o Office this Paper

Premier himself, is shown by the latter's declaration regarding the return of Tsingtao which raised such a furore among the Nipponian Junkers several weeks ago. That no Japanese cabinet could, in the present state of Japanese public opinion, carry out this act of far-sighted altruism and live, was also demonstrated by the same incident. A Japanese consular official stated to the writer recently that it would mean political death for him to openly champion a liberal policy toward China.

Since the days when she first began to dream of expansion, Japan has suffered no set-back in the game of grabbing. Success in holding what she has got by guile and wile has been eminently hers, and "getting away with" embarrassing situations has become her diplomatic second nature. It will require some of the "suffering" that Ex-Senator Burton so deftly hints at to bring about any change in her national habits. This may come from within or from without, and probably will come from both. The small boy who gorges on sweets is not usually convinced of the evil of his way until he either feels the colic pains inside him or the birch switch without.

Generosity at this time may be Japan's trump card, but it is an ace in another game from the one in which her military lords have become accustomed to win their stakes. Meanwhile there is a large liberal element crystallizing in Japan who intend to do better by justice and honor. But "L'enfer est pave avec bonne intentions."

American School Fund Growing Rapidly

THE campaign for a modern American School in Shanghai received another substantial boost this week when a contribution of Tls. 10,000 was received from Andersen, Meyer & Company of Shanghai. Next to the contribution of Tls. 25,000 from the Standard Oil Company, this is the largest single contribution to be received, and indicates the deep interest that the larger American firms in China are taking in the enterprise. Total donations from American firms in Shanghai reached a total this week of Tls. 39,090 received from twelve firms. The contributions received to date now reach a total of approximately Mex. $80,000. Those who have contributed, classified as to "outports," "Shanghai," and "Missionaries," up to the first three days of this week follow: (This list will be continued each week until the school fund has been completed. The list of company donations will also be published beginning with next week.)

World's Largest Electrical Manufacturer GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY was founded twenty-five years ago at the very beginning of the great electrical industry. Since that day it has been the acknowledged leader in electrical development, engineering and manufacturing.

Equipped to undertake the very largest electrical projects, the General Electric Company electrifies railroads, factories and mills, develops electric power from waterfalls and rivers, installs electric light and power plants. This company manufactures electrical machinery of all kinds and sizes, specializing in electric power equipment for factories, textile mills, manufacturing of every kind, railroad service and mining operations. An extensive engineering force is maintained to design special apparatus for unusual industrial problems.

Branch offices are maintained in all large cities in the United States and in principal countries of the world.

Outline for the Study of Current History, Finance and Commerce of China

By C. F. Remer, M. A., Professor of Economics and H. F. MacNair, M. A., Professor of History, St. John's University, Shanghai.

This outline, primarily for the use of middle schools and colleges, is based upon the Review for last week. It is not intended that the whole of the outline be used but that those topics be selected that are found to be adapted to the class.

1. International Affairs

Topic 1: The Shanghai Mixed Court and Settlement Extension

Reference: Pp. 445-6, 448, 450-54.

Questions: 1. What and where is the Mixed Court? 2. Why are these two questions connected at the present? 3. What other important question is also being considered in relation to these two? 4. What is liable to be the effect of mixing these important questions? 5. What is the attitude of the Chinese government toward the Mixed Court? 6. What changes were made in the composition and administration of this Court in 1911? 7. Of what importance is the Consular confirmation of magistrates appointed to this court? 8. Upon what do the Chinese base their claims to representation on the Municipal Council? 9. What is the attitude of the Council toward this movement? 10. What arguments can you give for or against extension of the Settlement to Chapei? Note: These are questions on which one should avoid hasty and partial judgments. For further reading consult: Hinckley's Consular Jurisdiction in the Orient, Koo's The Status of Aliens in China, Tyau's Legal Obligations Arising Out of Treaty Relations Between China and Other States, Tai's Treaty Ports in China, and Morse's International Relations of the Chinese Empire.

Topic 2: Convention of British Chambers of Commerce.

References: 1. Pp. 442-3.

Questions: 1. What recommendations of this Convention have to do with Topic 1? 2. Make tables of the recommendations mentioned, under the headings of Foreign and Domestic Affairs. 3. Make a list of the cities represented at this conference. Locate them. 4. What impression of the importance of English commercial interests in China do you receive?

Topic 3: The Church Press on the Eastern Situation.

References: Pp. 473-4, 476-7.

Questions: 1. Is it of any interest or importance to know what the opinion of Religious publications on the Eastern Question is? Why? 2. "The religious editor is hardly a junker." What does this mean? What is a "Junker?" 3. How has China "won the admiration of the world?" 4. What is the consensus of opinion on the loss of Shantung?

2. Domestic Affairs

Topic 1: The Opium Question.

References: Pp. 443-4, 457, 458, 459.

Questions: 1. What relation exists in China between the Opium question and Militarism? 2. Name four provinces mentioned as connected with this matter now. 3. What is the present tendency as to revival of Opium traffic? 4. What is said to be General Chang's manner of handling this subject? 5. Do you know the attitude of the Premier Chin Yun-peng toward the use of opium?

Topic 2: Chinese Woman and Social Service.

References: 470, 472.

Questions: 1. What does "Social Service" mean? 2. Of what importance is it that Chinese women should study questions of government? 3. Show by Graph, or work out by proportion tables to show the difference between education for boys and that for girls in China. Draw inferences from these figures. 4. What subjects are being studied by Chinese girls who are in American colleges? 5. What two girls' Schools in Shanghai have sent several students to America? 6. What School led in the introduction of the study of English for Chinese girls?

3. Commerce and Finance

Topic 1. Government Railways in 1918.

References: Pp. ii, iii.

Questions: 1. What is the meaning of "on time" as it is used on a railway? 2. Why is it important that railway reports should be on time? 3. Locate the 14 government railway lines on a map. 4. On which lines did the government lose money in 1918? 5. Which line is making most money for the government? 6. What per cent of total gross revenue is the total of the expenses? 7. What per cent of the gross revenue of each line is the expense for that line? After you have the percentage for each line, compare these percentages. 8. Now answer the question again: Which railway line is making most money for the government? 9. Do you think it better to answer this question by comparing "net revenues" or by comparing these percentages that you have worked out? 10. Do you think the length of the railway line should be considered? 11. We are told that interest payments were less than in 1917. What do you think is the probable reason for this? 12. What is the total surplus for the year? 13. Do you think that government railways should be allowed to earn a surplus? 14. What do you think ought to be done with this surplus in China?

Topic 2. The Foreign Trade of the Philippines.

References: Pp. 477-79.

Questions: 1. What was the average value of the foreign trade of the Philippines in the years before annexation? 2. What was the value of the foreign trade in 1918? How many times as great as it was, is the trade? 3. Suppose that prices have risen 100 per cent from 1898 to 1918, does this affect the truth of the conclusion? 4. Which is the better way to measure the growth in the trade in sugar, the value in dollars or the number of pounds of sugar? Why? 5. On page 478 what are we told about manufactures? Do you consider an increase in manufacturing a good thing for the Philippines? Why? 6. What is the meaning of each of the following terms: per capita, per annum, copra, fiscal year?

Topic 3. National Wealth and Trade of the U. S.

References? Pp. 480, 481, one item on each page.

Questions: 1. Compare the figures of foreign trade and of national wealth of the U. S. There must be an error in the estimate of national wealth. Can you guess what it is? 2. Suppose that prices have risen greatly in the last few years, does this affect the significance of the figures? 3. Which is a better way to measure national wealth, to calculate acres of land, tons of coal, numbers of ships, etc., or to calculate values? (Ely—Outlines of Economics Ch. 7.)

Are You Advertising To Reach Chinese?

Every foreign firm in China is established to do business with the Chinese, to seek consumers and buyers among these people. Yet hundreds of dollars are being wasted in publicity plans improperly directed to the Chinese people which never reach the goal desired.

YOU would never advertise in a theatrical magazine if you desired to reach the electrical field in your own country, then why should you place your advertising in China in channels which will not and cannot reach the Chinese?

Neither would you send a salesman who could speak no language except Italian to sell your product to a purely English speaking clientele.

Yet every day in China advertisements of all kinds are being circulated which form a parallel to the above illustration.

Advertising is a proven necessity in China—it has brought results to the firms doing the largest volume of business in this country and is building up big business for other concerns. But it is advertising properly handled, scientifically directed to an investigated field, carrying the key to the marketing conditions and economic resources of that field.

This is real advertising.

THE advertising methods of the Chun Mei News Agency, Advertising Department, have been successfully proven. You are making no experiment when you place your account in our hands.

No field of advertising is entered upon until it has been investigated. Our staff of Chinese who are familiar with Chinese marketing conditions, who know commercial China, have made this possible. Our staff of Chinese translators and artists assure you that no mistake will be made in the pictorial or worded appeal.

Our selection of mediums is made scientifically—mediums that reach the field to which your advertising should be directed—mediums that produce results.

Gillette Razors For Men Abreast of the Times

NO STROPPING—NO HONING

No. 20 Leather Roll Pocket Edition

NO TIME now for wasteful methods. Busy men of today can't afford to bother with things that are inefficient.

When a man can shave in three minutes with a Gillette Safety Razor—the smoothest and quickest shave he ever had in his life—why should he take as long again to get some other razor ready for business?

Think what the wonderful Gillette Blade means in shaving efficiency. The finest grade of high carbon steel scientifically hardened and tempered—sharpened for you at the factory—that is the Gillette Blade, the most effective and economical shaving edge known.

The Gillette is the only safety razor blade readily adjustable to any type of beard, light or heavy or in between. A slight turn of the handle fits the curve of the blade to any degree of close shaving desired.

To be abreast of the times, invest in a Gillette—the one real shaving service.

News from Central China

The Central China Post states that an American concern is to build in Hankow during the winter months a new steamer for the Ichang-Chungking run in the Upper Yangtze Valley.

The Provincial Library in Wuchang was inaugurated on November 13, and the function was attended by the staff of the educational bureau and the school presidents in Wuchang. The library is open to the general public.

A contract has been signed by the British Municipal Council of Hankow totalling Tls. 26,570 for the construction of the new British School buildings. This is exclusive of the supply of certain material and sanitary and other fittings.

F. S. Unwin, Commissioner of Customs at Hankow, has been appointed statistical secretary of the Customs House at Shanghai and will soon leave for his new post. He is to be relieved here by E. Gordon Lowder of the Customs at Amoy.

Dr. A. A. Gilman, president of Boone University, and Archie Tsen, headmaster of Boone Middle School, went to Shanghai to attend the fortieth anniversary of St. John's University, Shanghai. They are expected to be back in Wuchang next week.

During the week under review, fairly large quantities of both black tea and tea dusts and large shipments of desiccated eggs were exported to England. Large quantities of gallnuts, white peas, and some desiccated eggs and black tea were exported to America.

The Tuchuns of Hupeh, Hunan and Kiangsi sent a despatch under their joint signatures to the Military government at Canton, informing the Canton authorities of the sincere desire of the Peking government for peace, adding that it is high time for them to conciliate.

Navigation by large river steamers in the Upper Yangtze Valley is about to be closed for the year as the river is getting low. Advices from Ichang are to the effect that the river is now falling rapidly and very likely the up river steamers will only be able to make a few more trips.

The Rev. Lieut. Edward Walker of the teaching staff of Boone University, Wuchang, who was connected with the Chinese Labor Battalion in France, has returned to his old work at Wuchang. The coming Sunday sermon at St. John's Church will be preached by him.

A fair amount of business is reported to have been done in Hankow in wood oil and sesamum seed and the prices are advancing daily. Cotton is firm. The market for other produce remains quiet. The yarn market is a little easier, but there is still a good demand and clearances continue to be brisk.

More than three hundred native junks are being commandeered by the Northern troops in Ichang. Both the Northern and Southern troops beyond Ichang are reported to be on strict defense, but there have been no fresh developments as yet. Trade in general is being hampered by the unsettled conditions there.

The autumn race meeting will take place in the Hankow Race Course and Recreation Ground on November 17-19, November 22 being the off-day. Fifteen per cent deducted from the value of the lotteries and half of the net profit of the race meeting will be donated to Allied war charities.

The Union Normal School of Wuchang, which unites the American Church Mission and the Wesleyan Methodist Mission, held its annual sports meeting last week. The students of this school are all trained to read the National Phonetic Script, and the hymn sung that afternoon was written in the phonetic script.

R. R. Gibson, an Italian subject accused of smuggling opium on a river steamer, was tried this week at the Italian Consulate before A. Beltchenko, Russian Consul-General at Hankow in charge of Italian interests in Hankow, and representatives of the Hankow Customs. The twenty tins of morphia found in possession of the accused were confiscated, and the accused was also fined $450.

The students at Yiyang, Hunan, have recently issued a pamphlet, urging the people to use Chinese made goods in place of Japanese goods. In the pamphlet they quote the following words of George Washington: "I have nothing to say to you to-day, except to tell you that everything I am wearing to-day, from head to foot, is of American manufacture and origin; I am wearing nothing that has come from abroad."

The spread of the opium curse in Hunan is taking a very rapid course. Reports from Hunan say that the conditions at present are much worse than those under the Manchu regime. In 1908 that province, with exceptions in a few places, was practically freed from opium, while to-day poppies are found growing in almost all parts of the province. Suppression measures on the part of the government produce but little effect, and it seems that the work of the anti-opium campaign has to be done all over again.

November 11, the first anniversary of the Armistice, was observed by the Allied nationals in Hankow. The American Volunteer Company of Hankow met at the American Consulate-General and held the Armistice Day Church Parade. The memorial service in St. John's Church was attended by all the consular officials, contingents of sailors, American, British, French and Russian Volunteers and the general public in strong force. There was a fine display of fireworks from a pontoon anchored off the French bund.

The Chung Hua Mining Company under Chinese ownership is planning to exploit the petroleum mines in the provinces of Szechuan, Shensi and Sinkiang where rich petroleum mines have been found. Foreign mining experts have been engaged to make the preliminary surveys. Seeing that unsettled conditions in Szechuan and Shensi may interfere with the surveying work, the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce have limited the surveys to the province of Sinkiang alone and deferred those in the provinces of Szechuan and Shensi until internal peace is restored.

A mining company with a capital of $10,000 has been formed by some Chinese merchants in Tachienlu, Szechuan, to operate a mica mine near Tanpahsien north of Tachienlu. Mica is found in extensive quantities both in the outcrop and under the surface of the earth, and it is estimated that the output of large pieces of mica will be limited and small pieces will be found in greater proportion. The same mine has been worked before by a German interest with much success, but the enterprise is now renewed entirely under Chinese management and control. Two hundred shares of $50 each have been issued and subscribed, and it is understood that the company will make connections with foreign firms either in Chungking or Shanghai.

The Continental Iron Corporation, an all Chinese company founded in September, 1918, by Chang Chien, China's industrial captain and an advocate for the "cotton and iron" policy for China, and some prominent merchants in Shanghai and Kiangsi, is now at work on a mining project concerning the exploitation of certain mines in Kian and Yunghsin districts in Kiangsi. A British mining engineer has been engaged by the company to make extensive surveys and investigations on the mines in those

Two students were burnt to death at a fire which destroyed the Wang Yuk School building, of Shui Nam village, near Kongmoon, Kuangtung province, on November 3.

The civil governor of Canton has addressed a communication to the local authorities ordering them to prohibit the growing of poppy, which usually takes place this month.

Wealthy residents of Hokshan and Kongmoon, Kuangtung province, at Hongkong, have subscribed a fund for the construction of an automobile road to connect those two cities.

The opening of the new Union Buildings of the Hongkong University was performed by H. E. the Governor on November 3, in the presence of a large concourse of visitors and students.

General Tang Chi-yao, Administrative Director and Tuchun of Yunnan, has made public his opposition against the present movement for the reorganization of the Military government at Canton.

The Macao Food Control Commission composed of Colonel Marques and Leung Hing-kee is credited with having successfully handled the rice control there, at no cost to the government.

The directors of the Canton Municipality are making arrangements to hold an industrial and commercial exhibition in Canton next year to celebrate the completion of the new maloos of the city.

One hundred thousand dollars worth of paper money to the denominations of 5 cents, 10 cents and 50 cents have been ordered printed by the Macao government to be put into circulation in that colony.

About two thousand persons celebrated Parents Day, November 1, at the Canton Hospital Gardens, Canton. The great success of the affair was due to the cooperation of the local Y. W. C. A. and Y.M.C.A.

The Government Cement Factory, at Canton, has resumed work after two months suspension during which period it underwent a number of repairs. The factory now turns out one-third more than its previous output.

M. J. Patell, a business man of Canton and Hongkong, has made a gift of $5,000 to the John G. Kerr Hospital for the Insane, and $2,000 for the Ming Sam School for the Blind, both established in Canton.

The biggest department store in Canton, the Sun Company, will be reorganized following a meeting of stockholders held in Hongkong on October 27. The company has been greatly affected by the boycott movement.

General Lu Ying-ting and Tan Hao-ming, of Kuangsi, have both telegraphed to Administrative Director Tsen Chu-hsun of the Military government, urging him not to resign his present position, and to disregard the reorganization movement.

The Overseas Labor Association of Canton will hold, on November 11, the anniversary of Kuangtung Independence, a Native Goods Exhibition in different parts of the city. An anti-Japanese "low-grade" goods parade will also take place on the same day.

Han Chi-hsiang, a representative of the Students' Union of Tientsin, is in Canton to assist in the formation of a union of all public organizations in the city for the purpose of promoting and supporting popular movements in the interests of the nation.

Acting on the advice of the Canton Times, the different students unions in Canton will organize themselves under one union. A movement is on foot to have the other students unions in Kuangtung province join the central union to be established in China.

"The Field Marshal's Residence," a huge two-hundred-roomed building erected by General Tan Hao-ming, military governor of Kuangsi, will soon be inaugurated in Nanking with appropriate ceremonies. The building will also serve as the governor's yamen.

Mr. and Mrs. Huie Kin of New York were guests of honor at a luncheon given at the Oriental Hotel, November 1, by some of their "old boys" now in Canton. Mr. Huie is a popular Chinese Presbyterian Pastor at New York, and their home is always open to Chinese students in America.

An Industrial Promotion Bureau will soon be established in Canton by the government for the purpose of investigating the industrial opportunities and needs of the province, and to recommend plans by which new industries may be established so as to promote the industrial progress of Kuangtung.

The Kuangtung Electric Supply Company of Canton has increased its capital to $3,000,000. All the shares held by the government against the company have also been acquired by local residents, the enterprise becoming, thereby, a purely commercial enterprise without the intervention and help of the local government.

General Ngai Bong-ping, Commissioner of Police of Canton, ordered on October 31 the arrest of Provincial Assemblyman Hsien To, for alleged libellous statements made by the legislator against the Commissioner of Police in connection with the Kuangtung Tramway Syndicate. Following a strong protest by the members of the Assembly, and by order of the civil governor, the arrested assemblyman was released after two days in prison and paying a fine of two dollars.

Wuchow, Kuangsi, commerce is outgrowing the city limits. There is so much prosperity in the city, and so many new shops have been opened and are planned to be opened, that the people have suggested the clearing up of the mountain in the northern part of the town for the extension of the city's commercial district. Four surveyors from Canton have been requested by the military governor of Kuangsi, General Lu Ying-ting, to do the preliminary planning for the proposed extension.

Dr. George Chien Hsu, one of China's most experienced jurists, delegate of the Southern government and Chinese Christian Churches at the Paris peace conference, whose acceptance of the editorship of the "Social Welfare," North China's largest daily, presages a new influence in Chinese journalism.

An evidence of the increased esteem with which Chinese are beginning to regard the public press is the connection of George Chien-hsu, a Hanlin scholar of the old school, and an international jurist of the new school, for many years a high official of justice, with the "Social Welfare" (I Shih Pao) as editor-in-chief of the Peking and Tientsin editions.

Mr. Hsu, who has been Minister of Justice for the Southern government since its reorganization as the "Constitutional Government," attended the Paris peace conference as adviser to China's delegation for the Southern government, and also as delegate representing the interests of the Chinese Christian Churches. He was commonly known in the delegation as Dr. Sun Yat-sen's "personal representative."

Mr. Hsu Chien, as he is known in Chinese, was born in Nanchang, Kiangsi, in 1872. His father, who was a district magistrate, died while he was a child, and at the age of nine he removed with his uncle to Soochow and later to Peking. There he studied until he attained the Han-lin degree, then entering the Law College (Chin Szi Kuan) he studied foreign law for three years. On completing his studies he was made Hsing Pu Chen Szi, or one of the four proctors of the Law Board.

When Tai Hung-tsi, Minister of the Department of Law, returned from his tour abroad, he appointed Mr. Hsu Chief Justice of the Peking Local Law Court, commissioning him to organize the law courts on foreign judiciary lines. After one year in this position, he was, in 1907, promoted to Attorney-General of the Higher Court in Peking.

In 1910 Mr. Hsu was China's delegate to the International Prison Conference held in Washington. Shortly after his return to Peking, the revolution broke out, upon which he resigned office. After the peace pact in Shanghai, he was made vice-president of the supreme court, becoming Vice-Minister of Justice in the first year of the Republic. After a half year in this office he resigned owing to disapproval of the Yuan regime, and went to Shanghai where he connected with Dr. Sun Wen, whom he had met in Peking shortly before.

During the second revolution Mr. Hsu practised law in Shanghai before the Mixed and Native courts. Soon after the death of Yuan Shih-kai he became a member of the Christian Church in Shanghai. He again became Vice-Minister of Justice in the first Tuan Chi-jui cabinet under President Li Yuan-hung. He opposed to the end the dissolution of parliament by President Li, and on the day before tendering his resignation, endeavored in a three-hour discussion to impress his view of the unconstitutionality of the matter upon the President.

When parliament was dissolved he proceeded to Tientsin and later to Shanghai, where he spent three months. When the military government was established in Canton, Sun Wen (Sun Yat-sen), the Generalissimo, invited Hsu to Canton as his chief secretary. Upon the reorganization of the Southern government, he became the representative of Dr. Sun on the Administrative Council, concurrently acting as Minister of Justice. When the Paris peace conference was called, he was asked by the Canton government to go as adviser to the Chinese delegation, and also by the Chinese Christian Churches to unofficially represent their interests at the conference.

Upon his return from Paris at the end of August, Mr. Hsu found Dr. Sun Yat-sen in Shanghai, having severed connection with the Southern government and left Canton. Mr. Hsu sent in his resignation as Minister of Justice, which, however, has not been accepted. Although he has come to Tientsin as editor-in-chief of the "Social Welfare," he still nominally retains his post in the Canton government.

Mr. Hsu was one of the first to advocate a peace conference between the North and the South for the settling of their differences. Just a year ago, immediately after the armistice had been proclaimed in France, Mr. Hsu suggested the idea in an article in the "Peking Leader," and drafted a wire to President Hsu suggesting that both sides send an equal number of delegates to Shanghai to discuss a reconciliation. The Canton Administrative Council and the representatives of the Southern Provinces and troops of the Military Government passed favorably on this suggestion, and the telegram as drafted was wired to Peking on November 30, being at the same time delivered to the consulates of the Powers in Canton. It was at least two days later that the memorandum of the five Powers advising a peace get-together was delivered by the various consulates-general and legations in Canton and Peking.

Mr. Hsu belongs to the new type of "Christian Statesman" of which C. T. Wang is the well-known representative. He has written several brochures in English and Chinese upon the relation of Christianity to the National salvation of China. In one of them he states: "I had the salvation of our own country on my heart before I became a Christian. I first sought for the method in morality, and failed; then in politics, and failed also; since I sought it in Christianity I not only believe but see clearly the importance of Christianity as the salvation of the nation." Mr. Hsu states that his editorial policy will be directed toward the abolition of the Tunchunate system and the establishment of the government on a constructive and constitutional basis.

The "Social Welfare" management is at present laying plans to establish a plant and publish an edition in Shanghai, in addition to its Peking and Tientsin issues, which at present total about 25,000 daily.

GENERAL

November 9. Following the discovery of evidence that various demonstrations against the American government are being fostered with money supplied from Russia, the United States government makes numerous raids all over the country, seizes much propaganda literature, and decides upon the deportation of all aliens engaged in "Red" activities.

November 11. President Wilson signs the urgent prohibition bill carrying 2½ billion dollars for the enforcement of war-time prohibition; by a majority of 641 the state of Ohio votes against ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment.—The British celebrate the anniversary of the Armistice by observing a 2-minutes silence throughout the country.—The American coal strike comes to an end following a Federal Court order, the miners, through their leaders, declaring that being Americans they could not fight their government.

November 13. The British House of Commons seriously discusses the attitude which Great Britain should take towards the situation in Russia; Lloyd George states that the Allies continuous refusal to act in connection with the so-called peace advances from the Soviet Republic, received through irresponsible agencies, had been justified by events.—The U. S. Senate by a vote of 46 to 33 adopts a reservation to the Peace Treaty declining to assume obligations regarding the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country.—A preliminary return for 1919 issued by the British

Board of Agriculture shows an enormous decrease in the production of wheat and barley; the hay crop is the lightest since 1893.

November 14. An unprecedented cold wave sweeps over Germany and France.—The Nobel Prize for physics for 1918 and 1919, and that for chemistry for 1919 are awarded to three German professors.—Although the miners strike in America is officially declared off, many of the miners refuse to resume work pending the outcome of the conference of owners and miners now in session at Washington; the men start the negotiations by making a tentative demand for a 30-hour week and a 60 per cent increase in wages.—President Wilson issues an executive order establishing a new schedule of Customs duties based on the reduced values of foreign currencies.—The President of the Aero Club of America announces that the first aerial Derby around the world will start on January 4, 1920; the zone to be travelled will be 70 degrees North latitude, 16 degrees South.

November 15. General Udenitch meets with little success in his campaign against Petrograd; in fact the latest news is that he has had to withdraw his advance guards.

November 18. The latest news from Russia and Siberia indicates that the Bolsheviks have generally been successful; they have occupied Omsk, and General Denikin has ordered the evacuation of Kieff.—The Bolshevik captors of Omsk set fire to the city; the position of the Omsk government is made worse through the defection of General Gaida, who refuses to obey the orders of Admiral Koltchak.—The elections in Brussels result in a general Socialist victory.

Twelve Give 502 Years to North China Missionary Work

Top Row—Dr. N. S. Hopkins, Mrs. C. M. Jewell, Dr. F. D. Gamewell, Miss Clara M. Cushman, Dr. W. T. Hobart.

Middle Row—Dr. J. H. Pyke, Sun Chiu Kao, Mrs. W. T. Hobart, Te Jui.

Q. Porter (Mrs. Gamewell), set in motion currents of far-reaching importance by refusing to admit girls with bound feet into the first Methodist school for girls established in Peking.

Dr. James Howell Pyke, an evangelist of power in the mission work for 48 years. No man of more influence, or of more power in winning men to Christ, has ever been connected with Methodist missions in North China.

Miss Clara M. Cushman, 42 years a missionary teacher in the girls schools; founder of Anglo-Chinese Girls School (Kean Seminary) at Tientsin, of which she was principal until last year.

Dr. Frank D. Gamewell, 38 years of service. Served in West China, taught in Peking University. A builder. Educated as a civil engineer, he planned the fortifications which saved the legations in the Boxer trouble of 1900. Secretary of Education for China of the Methodist Episcopal Church, general secretary of the China Christian Educational Association, editor of The Educational Review. A man of great influence in mission educational work throughout China.

Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Hobart, each 37 years. Dr. Hobart is a Chinese scholar and able preacher, and has a marked ability to influence the Chinese. He has translated the Discipline and is Dean of the Theological School.

Mrs. C. M. Jewell, 36 years of service, for many years principal of the Mary Porter Gamewell School.

Dr. N. S. Hopkins, 34 years. First Methodist medical missionary in North China. Started the work at Tsunhua, and has served at Peking since 1901. A medical evangelist of much influence.

Sun Chiu Kao, leading Chinese minister and District Superintendent, 26 years of service.—From the China Christian Advocate, Shanghai.

The Centennial anniversary of the North China Methodist Episcopal Conference at its sessions in Peking, September 3-13, was memorable on account of the presence of twelve members who have given a total of 502 years active service to the cause of Christian missions in and about Peking. This record is probably unequalled anywhere in Methodism, averaging more than 40 years for each person. The twelve were:

Dr. H. H. Lowry, one of the first two missionaries sent to Peking in 1869: twenty years superintendent of the North China Mission, twenty-five years president of Peking University, a man whose vision secured for the Methodist Mission in Peking its property of strategic importance. He has been in China almost 52 years.

Te Jui, a Manchu, who became associated with the mission as Dr. Lowry's teacher of Chinese. For 49 years in active service, serving twice as district superintendent. A man of influence in the mission's history. He and his family suffered much in the Boxer troubles.

Rev. George R. Davis, "the knight of the long road in China," the outstanding itinerant minister of the mission. In his 47 years of active work, terminated only recently by an attack of paralysis, he has travelled over 50,000 miles carrying the gospel message to strategic centers. Many of the North China stations have been founded by him.

Mrs. George R. Davis (Maria Brown), one of the two first teachers sent to Peking by the W. F. M. S. in 1872. She and her colleague, Mary

What Does Your Mirror Say?

DOES your mirror reflect the charm of a perfect complexion, or does it tell all too plainly of the ill-effects worked by the vagaries of the weather?

YOUR MIRROR WILL REFLECT the loveliness of a clear skin—soft, smooth and fragrant—by the use of just a little POND'S, the original Vanishing Cream—applied regularly night and morning. POND'S is a sure protection that will prevent either time or weather stealing the youth and beauty from your face. POND'S imparts that delightful bloom of perfect skin health, so attractive and alluring, which it is the desire or every woman to possess. This is Miss Violet Vanbrugh's experience—why should it not be yours also. She writes:—

"I am delighted with POND'S VANISHING CREAM, it is so refreshing and pleasant for the skin."

"SO refreshing and pleasant"—that is the effect of POND'S. It is employed with perfect ease—no trouble whatever, just a little applied with finger tips night and morning and between engagements—no grease, no stickiness, no massage. It vanishes into the texture of the skin, and is visible only in the effect of a perfect complexion. Exquisitely perfumed with Jacqueminot Roses.

Symbols of Chinese Art Discussed at Woman's Club

"Symbols of Chinese Art" was the topic discussed at the meeting of the American Woman's Club held at the Carlton Cafe on Tuesday, November 18. Mrs. M. T. Price gave an interesting talk on this subject, having lantern slides to illustrate the discussion.

"Art in China is not only a part of the lives of the educated but it is one of the principle factors in the life of all Chinese. It is not necessary to go to great collections to study the motifs and symbols used, for they can be seen upon the lintels of the doorways of the houses, and the shops, on boats and upon all objects in daily use among the people. Their garments are embroidered with emblems of happy meaning and with figures from legendary and historical lore, and no object worthy of any sort of decoration fails to have quaint or whimsical, or noble and highly moral symbols and signs wrought upon it," stated Mrs. Price.

As a rule the Occidental expects only usefulness and perhaps beauty on things in daily use but the Chinese always look for the symbol or meaning of any decoration. To illustrate this, Mrs. Price showed a tea service of Mrs. F. Ayscough, and explained the meanings of the different motifs on each piece. The bamboo used in the decoration of this set symbolises the seven virtues, cleanliness, separation from the world, purity of heart, strength, orderliness, perfection and eternal endurance. There are many reasons for the universal use of symbolism, which involves long discussions of China's history and psychology. They believe that symbols help to confer the blessings they represent and they desire to put into concrete form their wishes for one to whom they make gifts. As an example, to a literary man they would make a gift decorated with the ancient symbols of scholarship. The decorations used at a wedding are the good wishes for the couple expressed in pictorial or symbolic way.

To thoroughly understand the origins and meanings of the symbols seen in Chinese life and objets d'art, it would be necessary to go back into the ancient history and literature, sacred and secular, of China. There are bronze vessels and bells in existence that were made between 1766-249 B. C., and the symbols used on them are still in vogue to-day.

A short business meeting was held previous to the talk by Mrs. Price, and representatives of the committees of the various departments gave reports and made several announcements. A Nominating Committee composed of Mrs. W. W. Lockwood, Mrs. G. B. Fryer and Mrs. F. J. Raven was elected for the three-year term and Mrs. F. B. Hudson for the two-year term. Mrs. William Morris announced that the next bridge tournament would be held at the Columbia Country Club, 50 Route Doumer, on Monday afternoon, November 20. This is the second of the series of four and tea will be served promptly at 3.30 and playing will start at 4.15 p.m. Tickets for the bridge tournament may be obtained from Mrs. E. C. Stocker, and it is desired that all ladies who have tables will send the names of the players to Mrs. A. N. Lethin, 624 Avenue Joffre. The following new members were elected to membership in the club: Mrs. L. W. Strawn, Mrs. A. M. Hicks, Miss Bessey Dennis, Mrs. C. J. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. G. M. McMillan, Mrs. Cava-

A son, Charles Haldane, was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Swan, of 3361 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill., on October 1, according to news received. Mr. and Mrs. Swan departed for America last June where they are spending their furlough.

The faculty of the Shanghai American School will be at home on Tuesday afternoon, November 25, at 172-a Szechuen Rd. Extension, complimentary to E. S. Dreher, Mrs. Dadisman, Mrs. Beaman, Miss Hand, Miss Lowrie and Miss Taylor, from 4 to 6.30 p.m.

The American College Club of Shanghai will meet at the home of Miss Mayling Soong, 30 Seymour Road, Shanghai, at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, November 2. Tea will be served at 4 o'clock and the meeting will start at 4.30 promptly. Mrs. Maurice Price will speak on "Chinese Marriage Customs."

The wedding took place on Wednesday, November 19, of George Arthur Haley and Miss Dorothy Hughes, daughter of Mrs. A. J. Hughes of Shanghai, at Holy Trinity Cathedral by the Rev. A. J. Walker. Mr. Haley is the representative in China of British Dyes, Ltd. After the ceremony a reception was given at the Astor House. Mr. and Mrs. Haley departed for Peking on their wedding trip.

The Glee Club of the American Company, S. V. C., will give a supper-dance at the Astor House on Thanksgiving evening, Thursday, November 27. The music will be furnished by the Astor House orchestra for dancing after which supper will be served. Tickets for the dance may be obtained from members of the Glee Club at Mex. $3 and after November 24, may be obtained from all members of the American Company.

The American University Club of China will give a Chinese dinner, dance and entertainment at the Yip Ping Shan Hotel on Saturday evening, November 29, in honor of new American and Chinese college graduates who have arrived in Shanghai during the past year. The entertainment will be similar to a function given at the Oriental Hotel last year which was attended by practically 200 people. One special feature of the entertainment will be an exhibition by the Universal Film "stars" who are now in Shanghai.

On Friday afternoon, November 14, Mrs. Arthur Rugh of 154 Dixwell Road was at home to her friends, both Chinese and foreign. Those who received the guests were Mrs. W. W. Lockwood, Mrs. A. C. Davis, Mrs. G. C. Stockton and Mrs. T. H. Lee. Those who poured tea in the dining room were: Mrs. W. S. Ward, Mrs. J. W. Baldwin, Mrs. S. K. Tsao, Mrs. Fong Sec and Mrs. C. D. Giauque. Previous to tea being served several musical numbers were given by Mrs. Chiu, Edward Lockwood, C. D. Giauque, Mrs. Dean Kasley from Nanking, and Miss Elizabeth Rugh. Mrs. C. L. Boynton and Miss Ada Eickmeyer acted as dining room hostesses.

Defeat of Germany Did Not Mean End of Might

From the "Sin Wan Pao" (Chinese)

To-day is the first anniversary of the conclusion of peace after the European war. It has been a full year since Germany was compelled to sign the Armistice Treaty soon after the revolution. While there still remain many questions to settle it is to be recognised that fast work has been accomplished so soon after the winding up of the unprecedented world war. For the sake of world peace there is much to congratulate for. When war was ended China joined other Powers in celebrating the victory of the Allies. The belief prevailed that the defeat of Germany was the defeat of Might. China celebrated not merely for the ending of the war but for the incoming of lasting world peace. To-day we realise that our hopes are nothing but dreams. Germany is defeated but another Germany has risen to take its place. On account of the treaty obligations to Japan the Allies have humiliated us with reference to the Shantung question. Even the United States which advocate right and justice has passed the Shantung clause of the Shantung settlement. Where is the proof that Right has overcome Might?

The Need for Reform in the Wine and Tobacco Tax

From the "Shih Shih Hsin Pao" (Chinese)

The worst of the evils connected with the official sale of wine and tobacco is the contract given out to certain merchants to collect taxes on wine and tobacco. The contract system permits the contractor to make money for himself. This leads the merchants to use means to collect dues not authorised by law. Indirectly it increases the taxation burdens of the people. Many wish to secure the contract. Hence many would use all the available means to bribe or influence the higher authorities empowered to award the contract. Much money is thus spent in this connection. Whatever money the contractor spends in this manner he will, of course, take it out of the taxes. Thus an additional burden is placed on the taxes. Thus out of every three cents collected the government gets only one and the contractor two—one for himself and one for the higher officials.

Should Be No Loans Until China is United

kind. This is the first condition. The second condition is that China will oppose the loan monopoly policy of Japan no matter what the condition. Peking has proved to be a reckless spender. This is why it must not be entrusted with more money. Our experience for the past three years has taught us that if we allow Japan to lend we shall soon be placed in a state of national bankruptcy. This is why we must oppose Japanese loans.

Liberty for Korea and China

From the "Shih Shih Hsin Pao" (Chinese)

Some are inclined to doubt the statement of a Korean revolutionary leader that he has no feeling of enmity towards Japan. We believe his statement. It is the rotten wood which invites the insect. It is the degenerated who court oppression. Korea was wiped out as a nation because the Korean people were just fit for that. If Japan did not take Korea some other country would have taken it all the same. The Korean people are now wide awake and know the value of independence. If they will keep on working they will surely get what they want. No one can prevent them from having their liberty. The same principle may be applied to the case of Chinese militarists. The people of China hate them not because they are of the military type but because they refuse to wake up.

Why Certain Jobs are Popular

From the "Hsin Shen Pao" (Chinese)

Judging by the present situation in China the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Education, Agriculture and Commerce are the most important of the Cabinet posts. China is pressed hard from without, and the situation in Manchuria, Mongolia and Tibet is exceedingly critical. It is the Minister for Foreign Affairs who must shoulder the responsibility of solving the knotty problems. The people of China are in an impoverished condition. Agriculture, commerce and industry are in their infant stage. It is the Minister of Agriculture and Commerce who must devise means to encourage agriculture and commerce and industry. It is the duty of the Minister of Education to raise the moral and educational level of the people of the whole country. It is a fact, however, that instead of fighting for these posts the politicians are fighting for the Ministries of Finance, Interior and Communications. The mind and aim of these officials can easily be imagined.

Development of the Peanut Oil Trade in Shantung

BY HOLLINGTON K. TONG

FOUR million dollars worth of peanut oil was exported from Tsingtao to America in 1918. The total exportation from China last year was $8,000,000 or 40,000 tons. That vegetable oil assumes a position of considerable prominence in this country's foreign trade, but its industry for the moment is partially in the hands of the Japanese in spite of the fact that the United States is its principal patron. "Why don't the Chinese merchants deal directly with the American firms?" query half a dozen foreign officials who have an intimate knowledge of trade relationship between China and the United States. Both the Chinese and American oil dealers appear to be slow in answering the question.

In view of the importance which the peanut oil trade has recently assumed, the Mitsui Company, a Japanese firm, has a special fleet of ships which carry it from Tsingtao to Japan and other countries. Special wharfs were constructed in Seattle to receive peanut oil, which is pumped from the ships into godowns from which it is again transferred into tank cars. Peanut oil is also shipped to Seattle in tins which formerly contained Standard Oil products.

Tsingtao thus becomes the principal point for the collection of peanut oil for the purpose of export. Several Japanese companies in its vicinity are now experimenting with the new method of extracting oil by means of power presses. The Towa Oil Company is the most important. But usually these Japanese firms purchase peanut oil in the interior of Shantung and its neighboring provinces through Chinese agents. The oil is usually ground at the places of production and then brought to Tsingtao in waterproof baskets containing 160 pounds each. Its principal mills are located at Chingpie, Kiaochow, Kalchang and Newchang, and its price averages about 12 Haikwan taels per picul (one picul equals 133 1/3 lbs. and one Haikwan tael equals about $1.50 silver). Prior to the shipment of peanut oil abroad, it is refined by boiling and screening, but according to the experts this process is designed partially to blend the different grades of oil.

In pre-war times, peanut oil was chiefly shipped to Shanghai, Canton and Hongkong, where a portion of it was repacked in old kerosene tins and then sent abroad, but now it is being largely sent to Dairen and Japan for re-shipment. Some more progressive Chinese merchants are commencing to do a direct business on the open-credit system with the Japanese firms in Japan, and this eliminates middlemen and their commissions. In this connection, some American consular officials express the opinion that it would be highly advisable to establish a similar direct business relationship between American and Chinese firms. Although it is admitted that many risks and difficulties at once confront those who consider the matter, in the long run it pays to cooperate with the Chinese merchants. The next best thing for the American firms to do, it is suggested, is to handle the business of peanut oil exportation to America themselves.

Six years ago the peanut oil trade was comparatively insignificant. In 1913, one year before the war, Tsingtao, for instance, exported only 19,616,300 pounds of the oil. However the exports in 1915 were 31,193,953 pounds, which was almost double the 1913 exports. The exports last year were approximately 80,959,391 pounds, which was again more than double the 1916 exports. Oil experts confidentially expect that the exports this year would be able to make a favorable comparison with the 1918 exports and that they would increase in equal proportion.

To-day Tsingtao peanut oil is well known in the American market largely due to the care with which it is prepared in that region, and partly due to the fact that it is the only part from which Chinese peanut oil of a commercial quantity is being exported to the United States. The discovery of the utilization of peanut oil in manufacturing soap as a substitute for olive oil and for various culinary purposes such as mixing with olive oil to increase its flavor has given to the trade an immense impetus during the last few years. Furthermore, the utilization of the factories in Europe and America during the war for other purposes made more profitable the crushing of the peanuts before shipment.

The following comparative figures taken from the Customs returns contain more than an average interest showing the steady increase of the export of peanut oil from China to different foreign nations and the locations where peanuts are principally produced in China:

Shantung is the center of the world's political attention, and it also happens to be the biggest peanut producing district in China. It is estimated that it produces about 500,000,000 pounds of peanuts every year and that it exports approximately 266,000,000 pounds of shelled and unshelled nuts annually in addition to the exportation of a large quantity of peanuts as mentioned in the foregoing. The recent discovery of the nut, after baking, as a suitable substitute for coffee and for mixing with chocolate and cocoa and as an ingredient in biscuit making was one of the reasons for the increase of its export. Before the war, some 60 per cent of the total export went to Europe, mainly to Germany and France, and 40 per cent to Shanghai and Hongkong for re-shipment.

The shipments of peanuts from Tsingtao and other Chinese ports during the war however considerably dwindled on account of the shortage of shipping. The decline in the quantity exported to America in 1918 was however due to the restriction imposed by Washington on the importation of nuts into America. Although there is no longer any difficulty in securing the necessary freight space for cargo with the release of many millions of tons of shipping after the cessation of the Great European War, the high rate of exchange operates decidedly against any increase in the export of peanuts abroad although the export of peanut oil appears to be immune from its adverse effects. The following information given in a report prepared by the Japanese Military Administration at Tsingtao in 1916 regarding the exportation of peanuts from Shantung is not lacking in interest:

"While certain localities are recognized as producing a better grade of nut than others, quality is said to be determined by reference to the shape, the shell and the size of the kernel. In the better quality the thin interior peel is pinkish, and in the deep interior it is yellowish. Peanuts are generally packed in gunny bags. One bag contains 80 pounds of unshelled nuts or 160 pounds of shelled nuts. As shelled nuts are heavier than unshelled, thicker bags are used for packing them. Generally the bags in which shelled nuts are kept are marked with a blue stripe. Freight is charged by weight in the case of shelled nuts and volume in unshelled. In packing, peanuts are classified into 'native quality' and 'selected quality,' the former consists of 60 per cent of first and 40 per cent of second quality nuts, and the latter wholly of the better-grade nuts. Peanuts are often shelled by hand in the interior during the winter months where labor costs about 6 cents a day."

Peanuts are grown in large quantities also in Chihli province and the localities in which they are produced in commercial quantities are:

Lanhsien	5,000 tons annually
Changli	500 " "
Loolung	2,500 " "
Chienan	2,500 " "
Wanping	2,500 " "
Changping	1,000 " "
Total	14,000 " "

These figures necessarily represent only general estimates and the places where peanuts are not produced in large quantities are not here mentioned. The total exportation from Tientsin, the principal port of Chihli, in 1917, of shelled peanuts, according to the Customs return, was 7,000 tons, and peanuts in shell, 1,620 tons. The export of peanuts to America in 1918 practically ceased as is shown in the annual declared export returns of the American consulate in that port. According to these statistics, the quantity of value of peanuts shipped from Tientsin to America during the first ten months of 1918 were only 71.5 tons (these were unshelled there being none shelled) valued at $20,647.

Peanuts are found in nearly every part of China, and contain approximately 46 per cent of oil. For a time Shantung and Kiangsu were the chief producing provinces, but later Chihli outstripped them. Since the capture of Tsingtao by Japan in November 1914, Shantung has again become the principal peanut producing province and gone back to its former predominant position. The peanuts grown in the Luanchou districts (Luan River) are said to be superior in quality to those grown elsewhere in Asia. The British call them "groundnuts," and the reason is "when the fruit begins to develop, the plant tends downwards and thrusts its fruit into the ground, where the nut matures. Hence the name."

The domestic consumption of peanuts and peanut oil is enormous. The people in both North and South China use peanuts as food and for cooking purposes. What has been sent abroad represents only a small percentage of the aggregate product. Peanut cake (refuse after the extraction of oil) is used mainly for feeding animals. Locally this trade is almost entirely in the hands of the Chinese.

With the lower freight rates, the availability of ships for the transportation of goods and the resumption of the ordinary activities of the European and American factories, the trade in peanuts and peanut oil, it is believed, will soon receive considerable new impetus and merit necessary attention from the commercial experts, who are expected to do away with the system of middlemen and promote direct dealings between China and the foreign nations with the result that both producers and consumers can equally obtain immense benefit.

Rosenfeld's Weekly Cotton Market Report

China Cotton:—The cotton market during the early part of the week has been practically featureless. Fluctuations were within narrow limits, influenced from day to day by the "Silver" Market and as a consequence Spinners are practically out of the market awaiting some new feature to give it a decided turn one way or another. What little sentiment there is loans towards the "Bear" side, on account of the almost impossibility for exports, coupled with the fact that general business on cotton, locally, has not improved as it should, and the conclusions are that prices must decline.

As anticipated, natural conditions have asserted themselves, and at the close of the week prices dropped about $\frac{1}{2}$ tael, with a steady to weak undertone. It would be unwise, however, to disregard the effect of the months after Chinese New Year, on the minds of the holders of "actual" cotton and on the actions of speculators. While the immediate outlook may appear more or less involved, we continue to believe in lower prices for the near months.

During the twelve months ending September 30, 1919, the output of American shipyards was 2,386 vessels of 4,258,058 gross tons, including a small output for foreign flags, according to the reports of the Department of Commerce.

The coaling of foreign owned vessels has been discontinued in the United States, according to recent news dispatches, until after the settlement of the coal strike situation by order of the United States Fuel Administration.

The four 10,000-ton deadweight steamers which are being constructed for the United States Shipping Board at the Kiangwan Dock & Engineering Works, Shanghai, will be named the Mandarin, Celestial, Oriental and Cathay, according to reports from the Pacific Coast.

Portland is making a bid for the handling of Oriental oils, and facilities for handling vegetable oils in large quantities are now being provided at the municipal terminal at St. Johns, according to a recent report from that city. Six large storage tanks will be provided. Heavy shipments are expected soon.

The Marshall-Wells Company of Portland has announced the formation of an export department and special attention will be paid to trade with China, a recent announcement says. Hardware, iron, steel and machinery will be the principal exports. A shipping arrangement has been made with the Pacific Steamship Company.

Millions of ducks are killed annually in China to supply the feather industry, says a recent issue of Commerce Reports. In 1917 the exports of this article amounted to 7,083,338 pounds. Before the war Germany was the chief importer of the feathers, purchasing from South China alone 4,000,000 pounds yearly.

The attaching of duplicate invoices to parcels post packages sent to the United States Post Office in Shanghai by American manufacturers and exporters has been advised by a recent issue of Commerce Reports. This procedure will avoid delay, since packages bearing invoices or customs declaration tags are delivered immediately while others must be held for invoices.

Japanese land-owners control most of the fertile agricultural lands of the rice growing province of Davao, on the island of Mindanao, according to information published by the Philippine Bureau of Labor. The figures disclosed show that the Japanese own 69 of the 148 important plantations of Davao, while Americans own 37, and Filipinos 42. The plantations have an acreage distributed as follows: Japanese 55,000, American 20,000, and Filipino 15,000.

Reports from the Finance Department of the Japanese government say trade between Japan and China is increasingly favorable. The balance of trade for October, as reported, rose to Yen 15,303,999, while imports from China decreased Yen 3,228,000. Exports to South China showed a decrease of Yen 524,000 for the month, exports to Central China increased by approximately yen one million and to North China approximately 500,000 yen. The greatest increase was in Manchuria.

A college of overseas commerce has been instituted in San Francisco, which will give courses in shipping and international commerce, with special attention to Latin-America and the Orient. At the head of the school are A. E. Paulson of W. R. Grace & Company, S. N. Smiley of the foreign exchange department of the Crocker National Bank, George Fishback, former consular inspector for South America, and John J. Seid, formerly with the Robert Dollar Company at Hongkong.

At the sixteenth ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the North China Insurance Co. Ltd. held in Shanghai November 18, W. P. Lambe presiding, a second interim dividend of 15 per cent and a bonus of 15 per cent was authorized. Mention was made of the amalgamation with the Union Insurance Society of Canton and shareholders were informed that the exchange of shares could now take place; it was also announced that the "North China" would continue as a separate company with its head office in Shanghai.

Conditions in Siberia have become so bad, a recent trade comment from an American newspaper says, that many exporters that have maintained stocks in Vladivostok and other large seaports have decided to bring their merchandise back to the United States and dispose of it through other channels. One exporter recently gave a forwarding agent an order to bring back $600,000 worth of shoes that had been held in Vladivostok for more than a year. He said it was absolutely impossible to dispose of the shoes in Siberia because of the unsettled conditions prevailing and the shrinkage of the rouble.

The statutory general meeting of the Union Club Proprietary Ltd., was held Tuesday afternoon, November 18, at the Union Club, Shanghai, with P. W. Massey, chairman, Chu Pao-san, A. Brooke-Smith, directors, W. B. Kennet, secretary, and several shareholders present. The report of the chairman stated that the company being the holding corporation of the Union Club, an American-British-Chinese club, had been incorporated as a British-Chinese organization for the purpose of holding property in China, that the expense of furnishing the club and the upkeep would come from the subscriptions of the members, and that no directors fees or secretary's salary were desired. After the report of the chairman the meeting adjourned.

The ninth annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Ulobri Rubber Company was held Wednesday afternoon, November 19, at the offices of the general managers, Shanghai. G. Grayrigge as chairman reported that the Debenture Holders of the company had agreed to defer a payment of interest for three years under their deed of mortgage and trust. The debentures issued to June 30, 1919, he said totalled Tls. 94,160, being an increase of Tls. 4,010. The actual working loss of the company for 1919, excluding interest on debentures, was reported at Tls. 5,670.77, and sales of two tons of rubber monthly for October and December 1919, had been made at $1.15 per lb. The appointment during the year of H. M. Watson as manager of the estate was also reported. Resolutions were passed ordering the publication of the report and accounts of the company for the year ending June 30, 1919, reelecting N. G. Maitland and Pere F. Sallou as directors of the company and Lowe, Bingham & Matthews as auditors at an annual remuneration of Tls. 300 for Shanghai and Singapore. The yield for next year was reported increased by improved cultivation by 100 lbs. per acre.

Chinese Government Railways PEKING-HANKOW LINE "The Road Through the Heart of China"

THE Peking-Hankow Line, the most important section of China's overland route, enables tourists and travellers to get a glimpse of Old China, the train passing through magnificent scenery, traversing the great plains of Chihli, the central portion of Honan and the mountainous region of the eastern Hupeh province.

The Peking-Hankow route joins at Fengtai the main line of the Peking-Mukden Railway, by means of which this line is connected with the railways in Manchuria, Korea, Japan and Siberia, while steamer facilities at Hankow bring it into easy communications with the Yangtze River ports and Shanghai.

From the Capital of Hankow the journey occupies 34 hours, by the daily through train which is provided with up-to-date sleeping and dining accommodations.

Chikungshan Mountain (Summer Resort). Not many Summer Resorts in China inland can bear comparison with the natural charming views that reward those who ascend the mountain of Chi Kung Shan whose summit stands at an altitude of 1980 ft. On reaching Sintien Station, situated 110 m. from Hankow, a serpentine road climbs the mountain, on top of which are hundreds of beautiful bungalows awaiting vacationists. This popular resort is celebrated for its scenery, where an almost unbroken communion with nature can be enjoyed for a week at a time.

Hai Ling or Western Tombs. With their present-day accessibility, there is now little excuse for visitors to Peking omitting a trip to the Western Tombs, undoubtedly one of the most impressive sights in China. The site of these beautifully adorned Imperial Tombs is close to Liang Ko Chwang station, 79 m. from Peking, which is reached by a Branch-line formerly built for the exclusive use of the Imperial Sovereigns when visiting the Tombs of their ancestors. The Western Tombs include the mausoleums of four Manchu Emperors and three Empresses, as well as those of a number of Princesses. The region is justly appreciated for the charming scenery surrounding the Imperial Tombs and is highly recommended to any one in search of the extraordinary and beautiful.

Chinese Government Railway

Kaifengfu-Honanfu (Peinlo) Line

The Kaifengfu-Honanfu (Peinlo) Railway often called the Lunghai and Peinlo Line connects the main Shanghai-Tientsin lines with the Peking-Hankow line. It is 115 miles long and was financed principally by Franco-Belgian capital.

This line joins the Peking-Hankow Railway at Chenchow and an extension to Hsuechowfu on the Shanghai-Nanking-Tientsin line is contemplated. The line is franchised and has a capital of Mex. $17,270,595 of which Mex. $17,182,006 is paid up. The franchise for its construction was granted to the Compagnie Generale des Chemins de fer et Tramways de Chine. 260 miles of extension to Sianfu was originally granted to two Chinese provincial companies. The first Section of 115 miles was redeemed by the Chinese Central Government in 1914.

The amount at credit for the cost of the railway was Mex. $16,537,779 and of this sum Mex. $16,300,117 has already been disbursed. Passenger receipts for the first five years working were: Mex. $273,489; $303,960; (No record); $482,097; $537,313. Freight receipts in 1911 and 1912 were Mex. $261,348; and Mex. $274,960, and in 1914 and 1915 Mex. $547,388 and $485,377 respectively.

The general working expenses in 1911 and 1912 were Mex. $465,179 and $524,741 and in 1914 and 1915 were Mex. $464,464 and $606,426 respectively.

Further information regarding the line may be obtained by addressing the

DIRECTOR-GENERAL, LUNGHAI RAILWAY
Peking, China.

The Foreign Commerce Association of the Pacific Coast has been formed by the leading importers and exporters of the American Pacific Coast to combat recent adverse rulings of the Railroad Administration and proposed tariff changes which they say will take away the more than a billion dollars annual trade of the Pacific Coast by giving the advantage to the Eastern and Middle Western firms. One of the items which the association is making complaints against is that of the change in tariff regulations which provide for a taxing of goods at the rate of $1.20 per ton unless they are reshipped from the docks within ten days and in the original containers. Freight will thus move the goods to some inland cities to escape the tax and the coast cities will lose their positions as distributing centers. The vegetable oil trade is the one most affected. The importers of the oils are not permitted by railroad regulations to reship their product in its original containers yet are charged $1.20 extra if they do not, the association charges. Millions of dollars have been spent for tanks and other improvements in endeavors to recondition the oil and put it in shape for shipment and now the companies are penalized for this improvement, the association members declare. The importation of vegetable and wood oil on the Pacific Coast in 1918 amounted to approximately $200,000,000.

New Books and Publications

The Far East Unveiled

The Far East Unveiled, by Frederic Coleman, F. R. G. S. Boston and New York: Houghton Mifflin Company. Price, Gold $3.

IN attempting to review a work of this nature one is faced at the outset by the question as to the object of a book review. Should it be a resume in which the heart of the book is torn out to be hastily devoured by hungry but busy (or lazy?) readers, or should it attempt only to draw the attention of the thoughtful by the mention of a few of the salient points? Surely the latter, for to list and discuss the author's observations would be a hopeless task as well as most unfair to him and his readers.

Mr. Coleman is a journalist of American birth who came to the Far East in 1916 to make a study of economic and political conditions for the Melbourne Herald. His writing is frankly journalistic in style—at times almost irritatingly so—but the book is full of information carefully noted and is the fruit of practised and thoughtful observation. Many of the questions of present-day importance are discussed in a remarkably impartial manner.

The title, The Far East Unveiled, does not mean that the author feels he has solved the "age-old mystery of the East." It refers to the making clear of the issues which confront the nations of the earth by the recent actions of Japan and China. It is held that Japan in 1916 was at the parting of the ways. Either she could profit by the lessons of the war to follow the paths of peace, or she could forge on blindly trusting in militarism.

Japan's foreign policy is studied: her loans to China, her relations to the Hanyehping Iron & Coal Company, the infamous Five Group Demands and, most important of all for what he finally learned, the question of the Open Door in Manchuria. Is Japan carrying out her treaty obligations in Manchuria? Well—read Chapter XXVIII, On Temporary Discrimination, for the answer!

Having studied the Manchurian question the writer next considers the domestic history of Japan: Constitutionalism, party strife, the militarists, the growth of industries with the concomitant rise of a capitalistic group and the exploitation of the laborers. From the viewpoint of the economist the most interesting question dealt with is that of the growth of the Factory system, and the attitude of the government toward home manufactures. A few trenchant remarks on commercial morality and an explanation of the evolution of the Japanese commercial class are worth reading.

Equally valuable is the study of constitutionalism as applied to the resignation of Marquis Okuma from the Premiership, and the influence of the Genro or Council of Elder Statesmen in appointing Count Terauchi to that office. Japan is the sole example of a constitutional despotism. "Any progress toward true representative government must necessarily be in violation of the Constitution of Japan unless it is the idea of the politicians and statesmen of Japan to develop their representative progress and rights through the establishment of precedent," says the Japan Advertiser quoted by Mr. Coleman. On page 246 occurs this sentence: "Tokutomi was undeniably right when he laid such stress on the fact that the Japanese Constitution is a very different thing indeed from the British Constitution or, he might have added, from any other constitution that ever pretended to be a constitution which gave a people the franchise or anything like it."

Not the least noteworthy point mentioned was the attack in 1916 by the Japanese press on the alliance with Great Britain, and the general attitude of individuals and organizations toward the Allies when the war was at a crucial stage. We read much of the German mind during the war, and of the state of mind of the Western Allies. Here is a study of the Japanese mind.

The author's attitude throughout the book is frank, impartial, and hopeful. The keynote is struck when he says, "Let us be frank. Nothing is gained by fatuousness. It is but little less dangerous than foolish jingoism." He happily avoids both fatuousness and jingoism and thus ensures the success of his work.

Shanghai Exchange for week ending Wednesday, Nov. 18th, 1919

By Maitland, Fearon and Brand

Exchange:—An advance of 1d. and 1d. respectively has to be recorded in the spot and forward London prices of silver since this day last week. Local rates remain at 7/0 T/T but as business has been reported as high at 7/8 this must merely be regarded as a nominal rate. Export paper has been very much in evidence and this coupled with the almost complete lack of demand is responsible for the high rates ruling. Recent arrivals of bar silver by the s.s. "Empress of Asia" and "Venezuela" totalling roughly 6,000 bars, have been easily absorbed, with the result that the cash position is in no way easier.

The London/Paris rate has declined further to 39.00 while the New York/London rate has fallen away from 4.14 to 4.09 1/2.

The local stock of sycee and Bar Silver at Tls. 21,864,000 is about 3 lakhs down and the stock of Mexican and Chinese Dollars at $9,310,000 is roughly $2,330,000 lower.
